

Positive and Progressive Discipline Training

Course Overview:

There are an exponentially increasing number of court cases, labour relations hearings and human rights investigations because managers fail to take the proper and legal steps leading to proper disciplining, remediation or termination of employees.

Simply, the organization of today has standards of communication that need to be incorporated into the workplace. Begin by incorporating exacting discipline policies and procedures consistent with human rights tribunals and the law. Do away with costly third party interventions into the workplace, or costly litigation.

Training in positive and progressive discipline will be the first step in creating a work environment free of insubordination or hostility. Progressive discipline encourages and fosters trust and confidence in management and a return to harmony in the workplace.
